Please note that these events are highlighted for the Celebration 2000, please see the Calendar of Events in the center spread for ALL events taking place throughout the year in Havre de Grace.

Welcome to the Havre de Grace Experience

Wow! The end of our second year of publication and crossing into the new millennium. This is certainly an exciting issue. We've moved into 24 pages – up from 20 in the last edition and 16 in the two before that. A special thank you to all the advertisers who make this possible. And a round of applause (Are you listening?) to the folks who pick it up, read it and share it with others.

First, you'll notice a full page ad from the City of Havre de Grace listing their Celebration 2000 calendar. The Maryland Commission for Celebration 2000 has encouraged communities to "identify and showcase the many diverse contributions made by Marylanders, celebrate the state's rich cultural heritage, (creating) a better understanding of our history, a renewed sense of pride in our state, and a strong confidence in our future."

When folks started talking about how to celebrate the coming millennium, they decided against a big New Year Celebration figuring that there would be plenty of partying going on. Instead, the City is celebrating with at least one highlighted activity every month. The City's Celebration 2000 Calendar on the opposite page gives a brief description of the event and a contact number for further information. These activities are definitely not ALL the activities going on in our community. This ad highlights only those activities earmarked for the Maryland Celebration 2000 program.

I've also tried to gather as much information as possible for our regular Calendar of Events from September 1999 through December 2000. This is challenging since many groups don't confirm dates until their September meetings. I thank everyone for helping me to complete the calendars. We hope that you'll look it over and keep in mind those activities that you'd like to include in your fun-things-to-do-weekends in Havre de Grace.

One of the unique events will be the scheduled July 1st Parade and Fireworks that the Independence Celebration Committee does annually as the climax to the Carnival. This year the Carnival will begin June 27th (with the regular Annual Parade and Fireworks on July 1st) and continue through July 4th with a second special celebration of a Patriotic Concert and Grand Fireworks Display on the 4th as part of the special Celebration 2000 activities. Yep, two great nights of wonderful fireworks. I encourage visitors and residents alike to take part in all of our celebrations.

The new millennium brings a lot of excitement on a long-term basis to Havre de Grace. Ed Abel of Bulle Rock Golf Course (off Route 40) is working diligently to begin the next phase of their plans—a hotel and conference center. If all goes well, I believe they plan to open in 2001. The Conits Group is considering a RiverWalk Project, overlooking the water between the American Legion and Tidewater Grille and MacGregor's Restaurants. This project will include unique shops. Still in the planning stages, we hope to see it completed in a couple years though it's a bit too early to know. Bomboy's Candies are designing their new retail shop across the street from their present location at 322 Market Street. This will give them a larger shop plus parking and allow them to use the present location for expanded production space. Yum!

Allen Fair of the Conquest Point Partnership says they'll be submitting final plans in the near future to begin their new restaurant located near the Maritime Museum and Concord Point Lighthouse. Joe Parillo has recently remodeled the old Seneca Cannery. See more in another article in this issue. Two area banks are expanding their services. After more than 100 years, the National Bank of Rising Sun will open its first branch here in Havre de Grace. The branch will be located at 800 Revolution Street across from WaWa's Convenience Store. Columbian Bank of Havre de Grace has become an affiliate of Cecil Bancorp, Inc. Columbian Bank's new branch will open at 1619 Pulaski Highway (Route 40 at Md. 7) in Havre de Grace. The grand openings for these two banks' branches will coincide with the new millennium. We hope it's a sign of prosperity for both of them as well as a sign of a healthy and growing community.

The Starrk-Moon Kayaks Shop has been a wild success. The proof is in the number of kayakers you'll see paddling in the bay. And I, for one, can tell you that it is definitely a lot of fun—and work! Steve Roger's UltraLight UltraFlight business has also made its mark on our community. I overheard someone at a Concert-in-the-Park comment on "our ultralight" one day. I've gotten brave with the kayak, I just may get bold and try a few lessons with Steve on the ultralight this fall. Since I don't even like my legs dangling from a ferris wheel seat, this idea is still just that—an idea!

The enchanting lights of the Lantern Queen are seen more and more frequently on the river in the evenings. She's become quite a popular charter for a wide range of activities from weddings and parties to seminars. The Skipjack Martha Lewis is the official ambassador for the Upper Chesapeake Bay and already has a full schedule for the coming year. Her success with students in her educational program has been outstanding.

Mitch Shank, Executive Director of the Community Activities Center of Havre de Grace, Inc., with the support of many organizations, businesses and the city encourages everyone to take part in the Corn Festival. This is the first annual fundraiser to support plans to develop a Community Athletics Center that will offer pools, gyms and lots of space for meetings. It will be designed to benefit youth to senior citizens and everyone inbetween.

There are even plans to create an outdoor skate park for in-line skaters and skateboarders. All of this is in the fundraising and planning stage, but under the guidance and energy of Steve Stottlemeyer and others, it looks very promising for our community families. The young people are directly involved in this project and have made strong commitments to the success of this endeavor.

There is a lot happening in the coming months. I especially would like to encourage everyone to attend any performances by the Tidewater Players. I had the thrill of attending their performance of "Li'l Abner" and enjoyed every moment. In fact, I saw it twice! This is an enthusiastic group that has been able to spotlight a great deal of talent from Havre de Grace and the surrounding area. Note their auditions and productions in the Calendar of Events and join them for a fun time.

I'm sure I've forgotten to highlight something or someone. But the point I'm trying to make is that our city is a community of folks with diverse talents and interests. This brings a lot of life and activity to our streets. We hope you'll not only stay for a daytrip, but maybe a while longer (or more often) and get to know us better. Small towns are not extinct, just stop in and visit us. You'll see for yourself that hospitality overflows here.

Warmly,
Ellie

Susquehanna Museum

The Susquehanna Museum of Havre de Grace located at the Lockhouse off Erie Street proudly announces the recent installation of central heating and air conditioning in the Lockhouse. This will provide for the preservation of the museum's artifacts and the building. In addition, because of the year round comfort provided by the HVAC system, the museum will be open for groups and special tours throughout the year. The museum will be open on a regular basis on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays from May through October for the 2000 season. Admission is $2 per adults; $1 per senior citizen. There is no charge for students.

Be sure to include the 27th Annual Candlelight Tour of historic Havre de Grace, sponsored by the Susquehanna Museum on December 12th. The tour of historic homes, museums and churches will take place from 4 - 8 PM. The businesses and restaurants of Havre de Grace will be open. These businesses are a vital part of our community. We encourage the visitors to do their holiday shopping in our Havre de Grace shops and museums.

The museum is always looking for persons interested in preserving, interpreting or just helping in the process of telling the story of Havre de Grace and the Susquehanna & Tidewater Canal. Anyone interested in learning more about our volunteer activities please call 410-939-5780.

SKIPJACK MARTHA LEWIS UPDATE

MARTHA LEWIS, a living history museum, departs Havre de Grace September 5th for an eight day Goodwill Tour of the Lower Chesapeake Bay. Labor Day the historic Skipjack will defend her first place title at the 40th Annual Skipjack Races at Deale Island. From there she will visit Crisfield and Tangier Island. Then it's on to St. Michaels for the traditional Workboat Races on Saturday, September 11th where again she will defend last year's first place finish. She will partner with the Chesapeake Bay Foundation in an environmental program at the Maryland Seafood Festival at Sandy Point State Park on Sunday the 12th. As many as 5000 people will visit or view the Skipjack before her return to home port on the 13th.

Be sure to see their ad for the Jazz & Jive with Jack Benefit for their preservation fund. This takes place on October 16, 1999 from 5:30 - 8 PM. Another great calendar date is October 24th for the Pirates Party. Both of these events require reservations. Call 1-800-406-0766.

This past Spring the MARTHA LEWIS hosted 57 full day environmental Discovery Programs for area students. Program objectives include the study of habitat and bay creatures. Participants are guided through the collection, identification and evaluation process by an extraordinary volunteer staff. We salute First Mate, Zoe Small who heads an education team that includes Helene Klair, Bill Putland, Chuck Foley, Jack Davis, Will White, Ida Gangle and Dave Byler.

Special recognition goes to Tim Dix (16) and Jennifer Linton (13) for their exceptional contributions as junior instructors and crewmembers. Both Tim and Jennifer are home-schooled and with their parents' blessings were able to arrange their study schedule to include time for the MARTHA LEWIS. Both became proficient in chemical water testing, SAV's (submerged aquatic vegetation), buoyancy and displacement, migratory fish patterns, wind, weather and sailing. By sharing their knowledge with younger students, Tim and Jennifer constantly reinforced their skills. Tim's mom, Karen Dix, owner of Karen's Natural Foods, has encouraged Tim's participation and believes that the program boosted his enthusiasm for his other schoolwork. On a recent 5-day Chesapeake Heritage Adventure, Tim taught Navigation to four of the youth who signed on to study the Bay in 4 different salinity zones. We are pleased and proud to have these fine young people as members of the MARTHA LEWIS family and invite others who might have an interest to contact us.

In early August the MARTHA LEWIS offered an Oyster Art Program. With the help of a lot of volunteers, the American Legion Post No. 47 in Havre de Grace, and a grant from Harford County Cultural Advisory Commission, youngsters between the ages of 6 and 12 took part in an educational/fun day. They all had the opportunity to work on an art project using oyster shells under the direction of Teresa Yost Bennett, local sculptor. Then they had an hour and a half aboard the Skipjack to learn about water life, the environment, and to try their hand at steering the boat. It was a great time for everyone involved.

For information call: 1-800-406-0766 or 410-939-4078 or visit their website at www.newmc.com/martha_lewis/marthalewis.htm and check out the information.

environmentally-responsible marinas. To be certified as a "clean marina," Tidewater Marina will adopt a number of the recommendations contained within the Maryland Clean Marina Guidebook, a comprehensive pollution prevention manual. Tidewater has already begun plans to upgrade their dockside pumpout facility to increase access for boaters wanting to pump out their holding tanks.

Earth Day Celebration 2000

To add to an already exciting celebration with a full day of exhibits, entertainment, a 5k race and the 6th Annual Susquehannock Upper Chesapeake Skipjack Invitational Races, Tidewater Marina and the Havre de Grace Yacht Club will be sponsoring a Sailboat Race. This special event should add more fun and some interesting competition to a great day of festivities. Whether you're just watching or want to get into the 'spring of things,' we encourage you to spend April 15th, 2000 with us.

The Clean Marina Initiative is coordinated by the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) in partnership with an advisory group composed of marina operators, the Marine Trades Association of Maryland, Boat/U.S. Clean Water Trust, the U.S. Coast Guard, and other state agencies. For more information about the initiative, call the DNR at 410-260-8770.

Clean Marina Pledge

Tidewater Marina is doing their share to protect Maryland's waterways. Owner Gary Pensell and manager Jeff Andrews have signed a pledge to keep local waters free of harmful chemicals, excess nutrients, and debris. The Clean Marina Pledge is the first step toward achieving recognition as a Maryland Clean Marina. "Protecting the Chesapeake Bay waters benefits everyone in the boating public," says Andrews. "It is the single greatest resource enjoyed by all boaters."

The Maryland Clean Marina Initiative is a program to promote and celebrate voluntary adoption of measures to reduce pollution from marinas and recreational boats. The initiative recently established an awards program to recognize

Hospice Regatta

The following comes from Larry J. Appel of Upper Chesapeake Health:

Harford Hospice, a member of Upper Chesapeake Health, is planning the Hospice Regatta 2000, a sailing event taking place in Havre de Grace to raise money to benefit Harford Hospice. Hospice Regattas have become popular across the United States since the original Hospice Cup was created by the Hospice of Northern Virginia, Inc. in 1982. Since that time, over $3 million dollars has been raised for Hospice support programs in local communities.

Harford Hospice is currently in the planning stage for the event and welcomes any interested person or company to participate as a committee member or sponsor (or participant - all you boaters reading this!). Tidewater Marina and the Havre de Grace Yacht Club have already committed their resources for on and offshore operations of the event.

For additional information call Larry J. Appel, Annual Giving Coordinator of the Upper Chesapeake Health Foundation at 410-877-3700 ext. 3427.

SENECA CANNERY

It's passed through many hands. It's been called many things. It's been left to fall apart. And it's been built up again. Coming to Havre de Grace from Dallax, Texas, Joe Parillo took on the daunting task of restoring the Seneca Cannery.

"Seeing that the building had potential, I had to decide to stabilize it now, or lose it," Joe says. "The roof was the key. It was so bad that it had plastic in places where for years they had been trying to keep water from coming in."

But save it, he did. Joe Parillo has redone the entire roof, replaced windows, refurbished or added wood flooring, and completed point-up work on the brick and stone.

"This project is pleasure for me," says Joe. "I'm not sure what I'll do with the building. But I'll keep it preserved."

Rather than just ponder the choices, he's pressed forward and remodeled the inside. In the front section there are partitioned areas that would be perfect for retail spaces or offices. In the section towards the water, you can sense the building's history. The stone and brick with the deep set windows hold a lot of tales of years gone by. At present Joe is considering a deli/coffee shop concept at this end of the building. But time will tell.

In the meantime, the old Seneca Cannery Warehouse continues to stand strong and firm. It's 33,000 square feet have seen a great many changes.

According to historical notes given to Joe by Elsworth Shank, the building was built in 1831 as a city wharf at the site then called Browne's Point. Old Post Road would have led straight to Browne's Point where the Cannery stands today.

The records also show that the lumber for the Cannery was purchased in Port Deposit. In 1831 various steamer ships signed up for landing privileges on the new wharf.

By 1837 a substantial facility was installed beyond the Cannery building for handling the transfer of the Baltimore and Port Deposit Railroad cars to a steam ferry. According to Elsworth's notes, portions of the wooden members of this adjustable dock can still be seen in the waters in front of the cannery at low tide.

In 1867 the new PWB (Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore) railroad bridge was completed, ending the need for a railroad ferry. Approximately ten years later, the warehouse again had a usefulness.

S. J. Seneca and his brother, following the Civil War Era, began the Seneca Cannery. It's present foundation appears to be dated 1875. A 225' x 40' structure with three warehouses and numerous other buildings held the latest cannery machinery run by four steam engines.

Again, according to Elsworth's notes (excerpts from "Business Review & Directory" Franklin Publishing Co. of Phila., PA c. 1892), this machine (S. J. Seneca's invention) made a complete can, soldering both the top and bottom at the same time - 30,000 cans daily.

In 1891 (same resource) The Seneca Hosiery Co. was created to manufacture stockings. This business was located on the upper floor. Eighty to ninety skilled employees produced 700 dozen ribbed, seamless hosiery each week.

It appears that the Seneca Cannery at some point became American Can Co. It seems that a Stockham purchased the cannery from American Can Co. Following his apparent suicide following severe financial problems in the depression, Anderson and Geathers purchased the property from the Stockham estate.

Geathers used part of the property for storage of scrap iron. Anderson continued canning and had a contract with the American Stores and packed tomatoes under the Stockham, Inc. label during WWII.

The Seneca Cannery is a unique building with the buttresses designed to keep it from shifting when high waters threatened the shoreline. Joe Parillo will point out huge beams and the solid structure of the building.

Located at the intersection of St. John Street and Pennington Avenue, it continues to be a massive building. If you have any plans that might include leasing a part of the Seneca Point Cannery building, stop in and talk with Joe Parillo, or give him a call at 410-942-0701.

I would like to acknowledge the well documented notes of Elsworth B. Shank who is well known in our area for his painstaking research into much of the history of Havre de Grace. And I thank him for his continuing efforts to share this information.

A message to our readers:

The ads are placed so that as you begin at Route 40 (Pulaski Highway) and Otsego Street, you can see what's happening as you walk or drive towards the water. If you locate an advertiser in the "Lockhouse to Lighthouse" publication, going backward or forward from there will show you the next place to visit. It continues through Union Avenue, St. John Street to Washington Street (including those shops around the intersection of Washington & Congress). Then go towards the water to Market Street, continuing past Bomboy's Candies and Currier House towards the Concord Point Lighthouse, Maritime Museum, Decoy Museum to the City Yacht Basin and Tydings Park.

From here you would return to Revolution Street heading towards Route 40. At Route 40 you would again head east and catch all the advertisers along the highway. The historic shopping district is highlighted to give you a focal point. Those advertisers in the center spread have helped to defray the cost of the calendar and map.

We've done our best to have correct and complete information in the calendar. But I do encourage to call the number listed and verify the schedule. There's a lot of excitement in the air, come experience Havre de Grace with us.

We encourage you to stop and ask questions along the way. Havre de Grace is a pleasant community with lots of hospitality. Take some time to meet some of the folks and get to know us. I personally invite you to enjoy the many festivities that will be taking place during the coming months. From fall festivals and museum tours to our wonderful holiday celebrations, I'm sure you'll want to return and spend more time with us.

Warmly, Ellie (editor)

What happens when you combine the joy of playing in the dirt, a love of history, and a curiosity that would rival any three year old? More than likely you would get an archaeologist. If you have any doubts, talk with Bill McIntyre of Havre de Grace. Bill is a retired social studies teacher and a certified archaeologist with a "smorgasbord of skills."

When the Friends of the Concord Point Lighthouse were digging for more information on the lighthouse keeper's home, the bids from archeologists ranged from $17,000 to $20,000. Carol McIntyre asked her husband about it. As a budding archeologist in his retirement years, Bill was interested in helping. And the rest, as they say, is history.

At the time, Bill was not qualified to serve as principal investigator, but he was certainly in capable hands with Dr. Kenneth Gordon Orr. Dr. Orr, retired after 50 years in the field of archaeology, was a welcome addition to the project. He was an eminent archaeologist serving on the faculty of the Univ. of Chicago, Chairman of the Dept. at the Univ. of Oklahoma and established the Dept. of Archaeology at the Univ. of Rangoon in Burma.

Bill remembers the day well, June 19th was his birthday. It was 1993 and 100 degrees in the afternoon. Under the mentoring of Dr. Orr, the group began to turn a chunk of land with an old, abandoned, dilapidated building into the story of a piece of our history. Exciting? To those who were there, yes! In fact, several young people took their interests seriously and went on to college in the field of archaeology and anthropology.

The O'Neil house was originally built in 1827. Certainly in the grand scheme of things, to many archeologists and historians, that's not very old. But when you consider that a great part of Havre de Grace was burned in 1813, the O'Neil house becomes important. This house has many stories to tell beginning with the life of the O'Neil's as lighthouse keepers, a few years of rentals, and, in more recent history, a lively, colorful and sometimes rowdy restaurant/bar until it was abandoned in the 1970s.

Bill McIntyre first talks about the late afternoon effort on the first day to reach the level below the foundation of the house for 'sterile soil.' "I had in mind that we'd hit sand," says Bill, "not the tough, weedy and rooted material we found 42 inches down." Thus begins the first lesson for any kind of inquiring mind. "I had a mindset and I nearly missed the signs," Bill remembers.

Together Bill and Dr. Orr began in the summer of 1993 to sift through the dirt on the lighthouse keeper's property to confirm the historical facts of the building. Just like a human life, there are many twists and turns as you dig. Often with tedious caution, back-breaking shovels full of soil were carefully screened. Bit by bit the O'Neil house ground gave up pieces of the information Bill and 23 enthusiastic volunteers searched for.

SCHOOL AND YACHT CHARTERS

"We had been searching for the wooden 'foot bridges' - low set wooden walkways that allowed folks to get to the privy, other outbuildings, and to the gate. Then it hit me! This tough, weedy and rooted material was the swamp—not the sand we thought we would find. After all, the wooden walkways were to make it easier to walk over the muddy and often water covered ground around the O'Neil house."

"Water came in where Penn's Marina is now and would run around the back of the O'Neil property. There are pictures of rowboats in the mud flats where the Maritime Museum now sits," Bill continues. "This explains why some stories talk about the lighthouse being on an island. It would appear that way during heavy storms and in the spring rains."

In 1919-1920 the house was sold following the last lightkeeper's death. Elvira Davis of Churchville, now in her late 60s, recalls a family story of old Dr. Foley coming to the house in a rowboat and delivering her in the 3rd week of October in 1926. Then in the 1930s through the 1960s, the house was remodeled several times for use as a bar/restaurant.

Mrs. Johnson can tell you stories about her own beautiful daughter singing at the bar/restaurant in the 1960s before it was closed. "It was a lively dancin' place," she recalls.

Returning to one more story about lessons learned. Bill returned with a couple people in the fall of that year. His goal was to locate the wall (foundation) of another of the original buildings—the pump house. Wilbur Iley and Anne Persson were working together. Wilbur was digging and Anne was keeping concise notes.

Bill asked, "Hey, Wilbur, how are you comin' there?"

Wilbur answered, "uh... pretty good... but give me a minute here, I've got to move this big stone."

"No! Don't move that big stone," Bill hollered.

"NO? You don't want me to move this?" Wilbur asked.

"No, no," Bill answered excitedly. "That's what we're looking for! One stone and five dotted lines make a wall in archaeology!" Sure enough, the remains (layer of flat stones) of the wall were underneath the structure. The goal of that day was achieved.

If you look closely, the layers of remodeling can be seen. The first layer (bottom) of stone shows the original building of 1827 – a small rectangle with the kitchen off the back. The next layer (white) shows the raised roof over the house and kitchen done in 1884. In the 30s the L section (kitchen) was raised to match the roof line and an addition was created (can't be seen) to make the building a rectangular shape. photo courtesy of Bobby Parker

As you look at the O'Neil house from Lafayette Street you can see the original 1827 stone structure. (the chimney was probably rebuilt in the late 1800s). In 1884 the roof was raised. Then in the 1930s, more of the roof was knocked out and raised so that the whole building looked like a big rectangle. A restaurant was created.

One of the mysteries of the structure is a 4th chimney with a concrete plug in the center and filled with sand and gravel. There is no evidence of use. You can see rough, jagged brick where it was attached. But there is no clue as to why this was done.

It's believed that the house Mrs. Frank Lee Johnson lives in at 612 Congress Avenue was the home that the Fletcher sisters grew up in. One of them told Bill a story that took place around 1909. John O'Neil needed to go to Baltimore for a week. He showed her how to prepare the charges for the lighthouse lamp and she worked the lighthouse while he was gone.

To really enjoy these stories, you must talk to those who were there. As volunteers and novices worked with experts and students, the history of the O'Neil house was slowly uncovered. And the stories and musings abound.

Some may ask what's so important about the lighthouse keeper's building. First, it was built by John Donahoo, a well known and respected lighthouse builder. Mr. Donahoo was also a key figure in the commercial/economic development of the community. Secondly, there are few original lighthouse keeper's buildings remaining. And thirdly, because much of the history of Havre de Grace was lost with the burning in 1813, much of our history comes from these 'newer' old buildings.

NOTE: The Friends of the Concord Point Lighthouse and the O'Neil House Renovation Project are looking for photos, stories and history of the O'Neil house from the 1930s on. Please contact Marie Garske, pres. of FCPL, at 410-939-6112.

A special thank you to Bill McIntyre, Joe Guzman and the Friends of the Concord Point Lighthouse. I hope those of you who are interested will join the Friends of the CPL and offer your talents as a volunteer.

FOCUS!

It takes total concentration, steady hands, good eyes, and a cool head. Tony and Jeanie Miller of Havre de Grace have learned these skills well in pursuing their love of sporting clay events.

Sporting Clays is often described as playing golf with a shotgun. Unlike skeet and trap, which are Olympic sports where the targets come out consistently the same from a small area near one or two traps, sporting clays are shot on a range which could be a half mile or longer. You move from station to station with different targets at each. A sporting clay range can have anywhere from 12 - 30 different stations, depending on what you are shooting—tournament or just for fun. It originated in England and the National Sporting Clays Tournament is held in September in San Antonio, Texas. The World Tournament is held in a different area each year. (1998 - Africa; 1999 - France)

But this time we saw Jeanie and Tony at Alexanders Sporting Farm in Golts, MD where they attended the 3rd Annual Sporting Clays Event as a fundraiser for the Decoy Museum of Havre de Grace. In 1998 Tony Miller won first place with a perfect score of 50. Tony is a AA class shooter. In July 1999 at the Decoy Museum event, it was a 3-way tie for first place for Jack Concannon, Mark Helmick and John Tony stands firm as he carefully watches the target and prepares to shoot.

Sobolik. Jeanie generally breaks 38-42 out of 50 targets. She was Maryland Ladies State Champion in 1996 and 1997, runner-up in 1998 and 1999, missing the championship by three targets! Her best has been 87 out of 100 as a D Class shooter.

But Jeanie remembers about 4 years ago when Tony (at the time, her boyfriend) introduced her to sporting clays. "I had done a little hunting, but enjoy breaking clay targets or small cans or jars in the back yard better. I owned a Browning A500 shotgun. For my very first time shooting clays, we went to Alexanders Sporting Farm. Out of 50 targets I only broke 18, but I enjoyed it so much I was hooked!"

"Competition is really stiff in the NSCA (National Sporting Clays Association). It takes total concentration," explains Jeanie. "It's very easy at a station that is a fluffer (one that seems almost impossible to miss) to let up or get lazy and miss a target. Or you can easily over-compensate for a target, actually missing it. Since the targets imitate birds—waterfowl, pheasant, quail, turkey—it can be great practice for a hunter. But you can also get a target that rolls and bounces on the ground like a rabbit."

"One of the main priorities is safety," continues Jeanie. "At all times the chamber of the shotgun must be open, unless you are in the station/cage ready to shoot the target. You never load the gun outside of this area! You are required to wear both eye and ear protection. Your ammunition can only consist of certain size shot with a predetermined amount of powder. This limits the area the shot can go. A successful area is within 70 yards."

"There are many things that sporting clay enthusiasts have to consider. The shot pattern can be tighter or looser by changing the choke. The speed of the target versus your gun movement can affect your score."

"You must keep your gun moving. If you stop your gun and pull the trigger, you'll be behind the target. As the target hasn't stopped moving, you will have just shot where the target used to be," coaches Jeanie.

If you asked Jeanie for the most exciting day she has had in sporting clay events, she'll talk about the Seminole Cup in Orlando, Florida a couple years ago. There she had the opportunity to shoot with a group of guys who were top class shooters. She shot real well and finished at the top of her own class. "In a sport like this, you'll seldom find anybody with a temper. They don't want their sport taken away. It's a lot of fun and Tony and I have met a lot of great people from all over the country," Jeanie shares.

As for her and Tony, they practice at Atglen Sportsmen's Club in Pennsylvania nearly every Wednesday evening. Each practice session costs about $10 for clays and shells for each of them. "But Tony traded his boat and motorcycle for better guns and a golf court, so that we could enjoy this sport together," says Jeanie. They've won lots of prizes including prints and paintings, decoys and gift certificates. And most of all they have a lot of fun.

The Decoy Museum has also been pleased with the response to this event. It's become an annual tradition and grows each year. Dave Walker, this summer's chairman, reported that 72 shooters competed from Delaware, Pennsylvania and Maryland. The event began at 9 am and was completely cleaned up by 4 pm.

The auction held during this event netted $2200 with ten items donated by local decoy makers. Pat and Jeannie Vincenti of Vincenti Decoys donated $750 for one of the two Baretta 390 shotguns used for a door prize drawing and the top scoring shooter. All told, this event netted $6,000 for the Decoy Museum and a lot of fun for shooter and spectator alike. Be sure not to miss the 4th Annual Sporting Clays Event on August 5, 2000.

For information on next year's 4th Annual Sporting Clays Event for the Decoy Museum of Havre de Grace call 410-939-3739 or check their website at www.decoymuseum.com
